New Hispanic Business Group In San Jose

Agrupacion De Comerciantes Unidos-United Merchants Association-is a new Hispanic organization in San Jose, comprised primarily of small business owners.

The focus of the organization is to help members with specific problems in managing their business and other related issues.

Members of the group have expressed the need to create interest at all levels of the Hispanic business community. Ethnic business organization such as this one are seen as a vital link to the community, group members said.

Speaking favorably of other ethnic business organizations in the area, members have expressed a need to conduct business at each meeting in Spanish. They believe this will encourage other business members who, perhaps, have felt left out. Spanish is something that is lacking in other business organizations they noted.

However, they wish to encourage participation by all members of the community.
